The Indian Health Service has reported 1,088 tests for COVID-19 have been returned positive results from tribal clinics in the Portland area, which includes Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

In total, IHS reports 13,991 tests have been conducted and 12,170 negative returns have been made in the Portland area.

On the Colville Reservation, the Colville Service Unit and Lake Roosevelt Community Health Centers have tested over 300 patients since July 1.

Though numbers were not yet available today, as of yesterday there had been 7 positive tests reported in July alone. One test was from a tribal member who lived off-reservation in Spokane County.

- Avoid close contact with others
- Wash your hands often
- Wear a facemask or covering
- Cover sneezes and coughs
- Clean and disinfect
- Stay informed about the symptoms of COVID-19 and monitor your health daily.

The closure of the Colville Reservation to non-essential visitors continues to midnight on December 31, 2020 as previously ordered.
